Morality Debate Rejected in House

Tories Demand Full Details

OTTAWA (CP)-A Conservative motion for an emergency Commons debate on the morality of persons in high public office was rejected today by Speaker Alan Macnaughton.

He made the ruling after State Secretary Lamontagne FIRE LEVELS and Immigration Minister Tremblay gave an account of their no-down-payments furnibankrupt Montreal company. The Conservatives sought a HOME, SHOP special debate on the "grave doubts and uncertainties" concerning the morality of per-sons in public office.

Ready For Royal Proclamation

Here's the final new Canadian flag design approved shortly before midnight by the Canadian Senate after earlier passage through the House of Com-mons. A proclamation by the Queen will make it official, probably within "a few weeks", Prime Minister Pearson said today. "A good many formalities remain before the flag can be flown," he told the Commons.

JACKSON, Mich.-Officials at Reynolds Field wondered what to do about a pheasant that races airplanes down a runway on take-off.

The cock pheasant has built a nest along runway 2-3. When a plane taxies out to the runway, the pheasant comes out of the brush beside the asphalt strip.

As the plane starts down the runway, the pheasant runs alongside. As the plane gathers speed, the pheasant runs faster and faster. Both are airborne about the same time.

The danger is the pheasant won't hold formation. The bird inches closer and closer to the plane and will'fly across the windshield, getting as close as possible to the prop-Afroort officials don't know quite what to do. They't want to destroy the bird. But there's a danger the bird escalator was turned off and travellers were jostled. At least two persons were knocked to the floor. As part of a hoax, one of the students, dressed like a shiek, boarded an American Airlines plane in New York

The student, identified by police as Arthur Schein of New York City, was later charged with disorderly conduct and released on $100 bail. Sources at the school said that a group of students, apparently not in on the hoax, had planned to picket the air port to protest the arrival of the dignitary from the Arab world because of alleged anti-Jewish sentiments.

Splinter Groups Strong After Ottawa Flag Row

OTTAWA-Canada's two oldsteadily and severely they are in danger of collapsing together to the canvas of Canada's political arena.

More and more politicians and observers are now beginning to believe that neither can win the longest fight in the parliament ary record book.

They are becoming convinced that the New Democratic Party, playing its traditional role of referee, might be the only political group standing firmly on its two feet when the bout is finally over.

Some are also suggesting that the Social Credit splinter group the west and the Creditistes in Quebec will draw increasing public interest as the major pro tagonists continue to wound each other and weaken.

Early Use

And elder statesmen like former CCF leader M, J, Coldwell, an angry opponent of the device when it was used to cut off the 1956 pipeline de-bate, said he considered Pearson should have used it earlier to end the Conservative flag filibuster. However, while Pearson wor the flag debate, it is obvious he and his party have been hit hard by the allegations of bribery in high places and involvement of two ministers in furniture purchase scandals.

At the same time Diefenbaker's image appears to have taken a bad beating in the flag debate. The split in his party is increasing almost every day and seems to be spreading in different directions.

The main split is, still between the Conservative Quebec caucus which voted for both closure and the new flag and the English-speaking Red Ensign

Now however there is also a division between English-speak-ing Conservatives who refuse to accept the new flag and those who believe they fought the good fight, but most now honor Canada's flag. Diefenbaker has made no gesture since the flag debate ended in the Commons towards acceptance of the maple leaf deand his chief lieutenant Gordon Churchill (Winnipeg-South Centre) angrily proclaimed in the Commons Wed-nesday that he would not accept the new flag.

Liberal Flag

He said it was a Liberal flag forced on the country by Almost at the time Churchill was speaking. Conservative whip Eric Winkler (Grey-Bruce), a man with a considerable following in Conservative ranks, said in an interview he would certainly honor the red and white maple leaf flag.

"I assume everybody else in the party will honor it also," he said. "Not to honor it would be utter stupidity.

Direction of Production

SPEAKING IN NEW YORK reasonably high level of prosperity recently at a conference spon- in the world at large. sored by the Organization of Economic Development and Cooperation, Mr. J. P. Francis, chief economist of Canada's Department of Labor said that a sharp acceleration in the rate of national production in this country will be needed over the next 10 years or so to maintain the present rate of employment.

The magnitude of the task can be realized by noting that the average rate of growth in our gross national product from year to year over the past 14 years has been 4.1 per cent, after discounting price in-creases. This average, of course, includes good years as well as bad. Mr. Francis maintains that well into the 1970s the average growth of the GNP will have to be between 6 and 6.5 per cent, which is about the level of the best years out of the previous Assuming that in the period ahead there will continue to be good years and bad, this means that the Canadian GNP will in some years have to show increases of perhaps 10 per cent or more in order to maintain the average.

Growth at this rate would just offset the increase in size and efficiency of the labor force along with the expected loss of jobs due to automation. Achieving that growth, Mr. Francis said, is a major challenge to government policy makers. For a nation such as Canada to achieve this growth in production ers to grasp new lob opportunities may be difficult in the years ahead as old skills are replaced.

Mr. Francis also pointed out that there was another difficulty in the way of maintaining employment at a reasonably high level even with an increase in growth of production at the levels he believes necessary Technological change itself could lead to an increase in production while at the same time resulting in lower employment due to replacement of men by machines.

Thus, even with adequate growth of the economy, shifts in the de-mand for different kinds of labor will raise major problems of manpower adjustment. "For the public authorities," Mr. Francis declared, "it suggests that labor market and manpower development policies may need to turn in some new direc-their heads and saying that this cannot be done. It would mean reneging on his commitments to wage war against poverty and ignorance and racial discrimination.

These friendly critics say that if the Presdent's program is to be effective, it is bound to alienate a considerable number of his conservative supporters. If, on the other hand, he does not alienate these conservative supporters, it would mean that his program has been watered down until it is ineffective.

This poses, it seems to me, a mental question which lies at the heart of process of formulating the domestic program of the Johnson administration, The question is whether the politics of consensus, which was the Johnson hallmark during the election, is incompatible with the politics of progressive reform, to which President Johnson is committed.

I believe there is no contradiction. In-

Meaning of Consensus

FROM LONDON

What do we mean by a consensus? I think we can say that in the American political tradition a consensus is more than a simple majority, that it is a majority of about two-thirds, somewhere in quarters. In the pragmatic sense this is, I think, a correct definition of a consensus.

We do not regard the great issues under the Constitution and in our political history as genuinely settled if they command no more than a 51 per cent majority. It is only when there is a big majority that the Constitution can be amended, that treaties can be ratified and that historic changes of national policy can be genuinely adopted.

In this century, for example, the country has turned away from an isolationist The turn was not made even after our intervention in the First World War. It was really made during the course of the Second World War when there began vant international treaties. This has been true, also, of the big breakthroughs in recent years-the test ban treaty, the civil rights bill and the acceptance of modern fiscal doctrine in the tax bill.

Must Find Enough Money

In this sense, so I believe, the programs dealing with poverty, education and race relations, which are all overlapping and interlocked, will come to very little until there builds up behind them a mighty consensus, similar to that which now supports the national defence. The inner principle of that consensus is that money must be found to insure an adequate defence, and since there is this will, there must-in this rich land-be a

We have arrived, I believe, at the threshold of a new realization like that which came to us about defence during the fifties. We had been unprepared for the First World War, unprepared for the Second World War, unprepared for the Korean War, unprepared for the cold war. At long last our people realized that the protection of the national interest meant giving unquestioning priority over all other public and private interests to defence The day is coming, and it cannot now be far off, when schools, housing, urban revival and help for the young, the old, the helpless will have a priority in the public mind, second only to defence.

Long Process

The real point about the program of the Johnson administration will be whether the Second World War when there began to develop a popular consensus for acceptance of world responsibility. Then this war on poverty, ignorance and discrimination is certain to be a long one. It is the generation. Nothing that can conceivably be done now can be decisive. What is sential is that energetic measures be taken against the crucial points of resistance-as, for example, the antiquated controversy about church and state schools, the insufficiency of state and local revenues, the inertia of bureaucratic special 2056 Allenby Street. interests.

As the realization becomes clearer that the internal progress of the republic is a vital matter, there will come also an understanding that the costs of internal progress are not painful liabilities, but are, in fact, highly productive investments. Poverty, ignorance, discrimination, disease and ugliness exact a far higher sacrifice from us all than the initial costs of investing to overcome them. The country will not become poorer by fighting poverty. It will, on the contrary, become richer.

'Half-time Britain?"-a biting, hourlong program—cut through the fog of sophisticated economic analysis to contend simply that the real trouble with modern is not a matter of laziness but a result Britain is that modern Britons just don't work hard enough,

The program leaned heavily on the views of one William Allen, an American consultant to British industrial firms. Mr. Allen became a figure of some controversy nine months ago when he charged in a Sunday Times article that the economy being victimized by a massive and, in some cases, deliberate go-slow campaign

Full Employment Myth

Mr. Allen, who said his position has een fortified since the publication of his article, claims that Britain's so-called full employment economy is a myth. Far from there being a shortage of workers, he feels, there is actually a surplus be-cause present levels of output could be achieved by far fewer workers.

He produces statistical evidence to show that it takes British workers three to six times as long to build a house as an equal number of Americans using the same techniques; that it takes 40 per cent fewer Americans to build a ship; that an American steelworker produces as much as three of his British counterparts; that the ratio in the aluminum industry is one American to two and a half Britons.

River Men

From his letter criticizing the CBC documentary on the Fraser, it seems Mr. Dutton would have preferred smooth talk from promoters of tourism to comments from people who "would never leave the river.

The characters of these people, shaped by earning a living on and by the river, came across vividly. The film succeeded very well in demonstrating the effect of a region upon human beings.

Some of the shots, such as the contrast-ing faces at the Salvation Army meeting in Prince George, the man on the river boat and then at home with his 15 children and the celebrants returning from the Williams Lake stampede, remain in my memory in the same haunting fashion as the Canadian faces of poverty shown to us by the same Mr. Frank Willis some months ago.

It is Mr. Dutton's loss if he does not find such encounters with his countrymen interesting and thought-provoking. GEOFF MITCHELL.

The Death Penalty

If members of parliament were to take a broad consensus among their constituents, they would find, I am sure, that most people are opposed to abolition of the leath penalty. Indeed, many might ask that a more strict enforcement of the present penalty be effected. The basis for the anti-capitalists' brief is that it is no The fallibility of statistics apart, does anyone seriously believe that an average criminal does not weigh up the risks involved?

Much of the deterrent effect may be because past and present governments, by reprieving murderers far too frequently on poorly based, emotional appeals, have impaired the effectiveness of the judiciary and forfeited the confidence of the police and the public. Has our present parliament a mandate from the country to pronounce on such a far-reaching change in criminal procedure?

The nations which subscribed in principle to the Nuremburg war trials and vin-dicated the hangings of war criminals, since then seem to have acquired a moral supineness in dealing with those same vicious elements within their own borders. It is not a question of the revenge of society or other such specious evasion of the basic issue. It is, rather, that by this gradual undermining of the powers of the police and judiciary, all criminality is tending, more and more, to be condoned, with the result only too clear to every individual in any community, great or small.

Many people feel that the country should first be consulted before any vote is taken in a matter of such importance to each of us and, at subsequent elections, each party should acquaint the electorate with its policy on crime and its deterrence. E. H. EVANS, MD.

'We Can Do Better'

I was surprised at the recent column by Arthur Mayse on war toys being "O.K." It had a "common sense" tone but I didn't think this usually clever writer would fail to detect the difference between encouraging a robust enjoyment by youngsters of nature's power and the insidious implications of the indoctrination of chil-dren (and parents) by merchandisers whose only interest is the making of money.

It is dangerous social influencing to make a war seem a "good" thing, whatever may be the incidental benefits one can name to condone it. It is the promotional devices that do the harm. They falsely dramatize the actuality. They condone destruction and pain.

The dangers of such superficial thinking as Mr. Mayse implied by his remarks about guns are not so much that war toys allow a juvenile venting of re-pressed energy, a "catharsis", or an ex-pression of influence over mighty Nature such as kids savour when they throw rocks into water, but that he condones the adult methods of encouraging the use of "weapons". The argument that they encourage toughness sounds rather an-We need toughness of mind; we ady have enough mastery of mach and force to protect ourselves from "aggressive outsiders". We need protection from our poorly evolved individuals who apparently have not even reached the understanding Shakespeare gave the clumsy 11th century Macbeth (not an historically accurate character, I know) the awareness that he was actually risking self-destruction when he planned to kill King Duncan unjustly for gain.

Surely we can do better than repeat the sad patterns of the past. Vigor can be encouraged without giving tacit anproval to the wholesale killing of people even as a "play" idea. Let the kids "play war" if they must. They usually do so as an expression of other things like spending surplus energy, and, left alone, do it without much thought or false drama, but in the name of wisdom, don't let us encourage the use of advertising by adults, or any modern form of "mam-mon", to make it harder than it already is for children to avoid confusion and evolve a world in which they have a chance of becoming masters of a good

Short-Sighted

Surely the raise in bus fares is a very short-sighted policy, which will result in an even worse service and greater loss than at present.

A very large number of bus patrons are elderly people who cannot afford, or are beyond driving, a car. A raise in fares will force them to curtail their use of the buses, and will further encourage young people to make even more use of their cars.

A better way would surely have been, and would be, to decrease the fares, and improve the schedules to the extent that it would be cheaper or more convenient to ride a bus than to drive a car to work. Any loss by the buses under those cirnstances should be covered by the city and municipalities and the prov

The provincial government has its problems with signs and has been successful in preventing the growth of a billboard jungle on its highways throughout the province. removing those signs illegally against offenders, but the principle of the law to protect scenic amenities is largely established.

So it should be also in organized territory. As the parody of a wellknown poem has it, nobody expects they should not be, the municipality to see a billboard lovely as a treeor a sign as attractive as a piece of unsullied nature.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

The consciousness of closure has had a peculiar effect on federal politicians since it. came the most villainous of all House pro cedures during the pipeline debate in 1956. That debate created some myths. One of them seems very secure. It is that any government which invokes closure is taking an nti-democratic step which will create an unfavorable public reaction,

This explains the gice of Mr. Diefenbaker that the Liberals turned to it. This explains grave concern of a man (such as Stanley Knowles) who dotes on Parliament as an institution. This explains the general feeling around the House of Commons that the introduction of closure is a climatic point in this Parliament.

Some of this myth goes back to the belief that the Liberals lost the 1957 election because of closure. I was engaged in that campaign with the arch villain to those who believed that closure was the fundamental issue. I cannot endorse the view that it was at the core of the campaign which defeated Mr. C. D. Howe. Like any other procedural device, closure is difficult to explain. Certainly we hammered the idea of Liberal arrogance and contempt for Parliament, using closure as the main proof of the charges but I have never felt that it made the big difference. Further, the fact that the Liberals lost that election by so little despite a near unanimity in the press that there had been a wrongful use of closure suggests to me that it was important, but not quite as important as has been

Chance to Twit Tories

W Mr. Pickersgill guyed Mr. Diesenbaker for his failure to remove the closure device from the standing orders of the House of Commons. This failure of the Diefenbaker government to ct gave some of us in opposition a chance to twit the ministry of the time on its failure to ress its abolition.

In the first two throne speeches Mr. Diefenbaker had indicated that he intended to take steps to make Parliament more effective in the discharge of its responsibilities and this was acknowledged to be a reference to the intention to wipe out closure. When questions came up about the delay the tenor of the replies was that no Canadian government would ever dare again to introduce closure. The Liberal Opposition had indicated on a number of occasions that it would support end of closure.

Finally, in the 1962 session, the government set out in the throne speech that it would "reconstitute the special committee on procedure of the House and request it to make recommendation on the elimination of closure of debates in the House of Commons." course, this item was not reached before an election forced by the House was upon us.

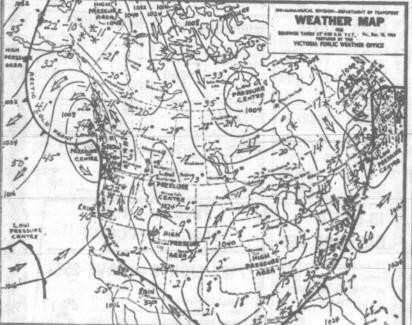

It is very clear that despite the delay by the Conservatives in doing something about it; there was both a committal by Mr. Diefenbaker that it would never be used by a Tory government and that his party felt it should be abolished. Therefore, there is a consistency in the Conservative position against closure now, even if it has weakened a little by the fact that it could have abolished it very quickly during the early years of its mandate

Limitation Needed

The alternative to closure has to be something almost as effective. It seems obvious now that there needs to be a limitation on debate, either prefixed by negotiation or with some substantial notice of a guillotine deadannounced by the government.

The general impatience of the public with this Parliament divides up into a number of persons and groups held responsible. Obviously, much of the opprobrium falls on Mr. Diefenbaker, much on Mr. Pearson, some on the smaller parties, and a portion on the lot of us. Closure may lend to split this since a clear majority favors the use of it.

It's my hunch the public is more likely to disapprove, providing we move on to other matters with dispatch. That, of course, is something you cannot bet on.

U.K. Shocked Over 'Myth' Of N-Power

LONDON (CP) - Britons reacted with shock and chagrin today to Prime Minister Harold Wilson's statement that their independent nuclear deterrent is ted into shouting frenzy when Wilson made his charges Thurs-day night but then gave the Labor prime minister what amounted to a vote of con-fidence on his defence policies.

One newspaper said the up-roar was "unparalleled since Suez."

The Conservative opposition took the unusual step of issuing a statement denying Wilson's contentions and deploring that contentions and deploring that "security matters should be drawn into public debate."

Savagely attacking the former Tory government, Wilson said the Polaris-missile submarines being built by Britain under the Anglo-American Matter and under the depth of racial feeling and appear to have produced a potentially explosive and east Indian descent has claimed 167 violence. This is why. Present voter This is why. Present voter Politics and poor leadership have split the once friendly 100 Indians, 95,000 Negroes and Nassau agreement of 1962 do not really constitute an indeendent deterrent.

STATES HIS CASE

Bulldozing past a shouted pro-test of "false" by Peter Thor-neycroft, former Tory defence secretary, Wilson declared with heavy emphasis:

-A certain fundamental missile component, which was not covered by the Nassau contract and was to have been made by Britain, now is being provided by the United States.

-The missiles are being fitted with British-made warheads, but these warheads have never been tested and cannot be tested because of the East-West test-ban agree-

-Britain was dependent on the U.S. for fissile material for the warheads. Under the Tory plan, the Polaris submarines were sched-uled in 1968 to become Britain's separate deterrent, succeeding the 200-plane V-bomber force, which Wilson said now is get-

Wilson apparently set out to demolish once and for all what he has described as the "nostalgic illusions" of the Tories in nuclear weapons. He wanted to rid Britons of the idea they were sacrificing something es-sential to their safety by earmarking their nuclear weapons for the ANF and the North Atlantic alliance.
The vote, which was merely on a procedural motion to adjourn but held great significance, saw Labor achieve a 20ballot edge with help from the Liberal party. The tally was 311 to 291 in the 630-member House, some members being absent through illness and others

Wilson earlier challenged Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the former prime minister, to say in what conceivable circumstances Britain would go it alone in a nuclear war with the Soviet Union —a war which might, he said, bring some vengeance on Russia but would bring "total annihilation of human life in Brit-

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIPLEY POVICH

WASHINGTON-The National Football League is still main taining its make believe that the American Football League, at the age of five, is still unborn, but the pretence is becoming increasingly awkward.

The NFL this year is finding a curious need to boast of its success in signing its high draft choices from college, and this invites the question: Success against whom?

· Somebody out there has been bidding against the NFL. And if those are wraitles, they have been flourishing realistic bankrolls with which to lure the graduating collegians. The American League has never been more solidly in business against the NFL. And relatively, the new league is doing very well,

It has been an excellent year for the NFL which can brag of signing 10 of its 14 first-round draft choices, but the AFL has come up far from empty-handed. The fledgling league has signed four of its first-round choices, and when it is considered that the AFL is comprised of only eight teams in contrast to the NFL's 14, it is not too far in arrears.

There is boasting also by the NFL that it has won three of the contests for No. 1 draftees in the head-to-head bidding against the AFL, but it has also lost a pair of these. The time has passed when the older league can overpower the new league with the color and bulk of its money.

TV. Networks Invest Heavily In War

It is a new kind of contest between the two leagues, any way. They are both bankrolled now by television networks who have a huge stake in which league signs which players for the betterment of the TV shows. The recent draft sessions were held in a big brother atmosphere, with the Columbia Broadcasting system looking over the shoulders of the NFL operatives and the National Broadcasting Co. prodding the AFL to dramatic

The networks, in effect, have underwritten both leagu with CBS paying the NFL 14 million dollars a year and NBC subsidizing the AFL to virtually the same amount when broken down to revenue-per-club. With the two rich networks at war and investing so heavily, the leagues and the athletes never had it so good.

When NBC was miffed at losing the NFL television rights to its rival network, it was an unexpected windfall for the AFL which needed and found a new angel. The war between the two networks to promote their leagues has been total and this year before the draft sessions NBC made 250,000 dollars available to each of the AFL clubs as ammunition in the bidding.

AFL Franchises Now Highly Sought

Only four of the eight AFL clubs took the advance payments offered by NBC, indicating that it is no longer an impoverished league. A couple of years ago, only one club in the AFL could show a profit on operations but 1964 attendance rocketed spectacularly, especially in New York, where the Jets this season drew nearly as many fans as in all of their first four years in

The AFL franchises that went begging a few years ago, with commissioner Joe Foss eager to hand one over to any man, or group, who could meet the payroll, are now highly sought. Expansion is being talked eagerly, with Atlanta and New Orleans low bidding as much as three million dollars for an American

It had been assumed that the AFL owners, following the NBC television bonanza, had no great taste for expanding and cutting new partners in on the TV loot. But this was proved un-Carl Lindeman. vice-president of NBC sports, has disclosed that his network will make separate television payments

NFL's Stand Smacks of Absurdity

Inevitably, the NFL must reappraise the situation and agree that there is inescapable need for a World Series of football with the two league champions meeting. The TV exposure the AFL has been getting cannot be ignored, and the NFL's failure to recognize the new league is the more absurd because The Associated Press and United Press now lump both leagues in their pro football roundup stories.

There is no contention here that the AFL champion would beat the NFL champ this year, or next, but if the two leagues met preliminarily on an all-star basis, the NFL could get licked. The AFL teams may not yet be on a par with the other league's but its best 22 football players are, and may even be better.

Significantly, the AFL isn't pushing as hard as in previous years for a game between the league champions. This is because the need for such recognition is less and the AFL is content with the way it is moving. The NFLs pretence that two leagues can't play at the game is wearing thin.

'Legal' Betting Handle Reaches Four Billion for the first time in history in 1964, the annual year-end survey of The Associated Press showed today.

the thoroughbreds and the trotters was $4,318,747,489, up from the 1963 total of $3,889,593,603. The total was wagered by a record attendance of 60,718,540, an increase of more than five million from the 55,367,982 a year

If an additional $378,988,900 that was legally bet on dog racing is counted, the grand total in the United States would be $4,697,736,389. Indicative of the upward trend is the record $161,515,313 bet in Canada on the thoroughbreds.

The breakdown of the over-all total shows $3,057,898,763 was wagered on the thoroughbreds by 39,186,519. Harness racing bets aggregated $1,260,848,726 by 21,532,021. The various state treasuries benefited roughly by $300,000,000 from the runners and nearly $100,000,000 from harness racing.

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

See how much of Pontiac is completely new for '65! Unmistakably, it's the new look of success . . . a newness you can see in every detail of Pontiac's exciting styling. The tasteful, elegant design and well-bred lines are distinctively, uniquely Pontiac. You'll find so many features in Pontiac to keep you a proud owner year after year. Magic-Mirror finish that needs no polishing to maintain its showroom gloss. Zinc primer rustproofing to protect exposed parts against winter's ravages. Water-washed, air-dried rocker panels that help flush away damaging salt and moisture before it can do harm. Delcotron generator that keeps your battery up to peak performance by charging even while your engine is idling. High-Level heater intake to help prevent traffic fumes entering Pontiac's comfortably warm interior. For '65 there's a new richness of beautiful, fashion-flair fabrics; glamorous new padded instrument panel. A host of convenience features built into every Pontiac model. And there's a new feeling of lively Pontiac action with whatever engine you order ... from the economical Astro-Six through a full range of husky V8s. Never before has Pontiac lived up to its "Success Car" reputation so beautifully.

ALCOHOLICS—A Care Needed Before Cure

By PETE LOUDON There's a difference between the ordinary smoker and the smoker who has lung cancer. And the difference is just as acute between the ordinary drinker and the alcoholic. But if the cancer victim's ings hemorrhage every week he'll be admitted each time to hospital. The recurrent al-coholic, no.

sually, the alcoholic gets into hospital only in an emerg-ency. Too often he ends up in the street or in the drunk tank at the jail.

And that's one of the big Christmas problems of The Alcoholism Foundation centre here and of the families of Greater Victoria's 3,000 alco-

Officials of the foundation told me the story after I told them about an alcoholic I knew. He hated drink. He begged for deliverance—even the final deliverance—from the craving that was so great it overcame all his decency, all his sense of responsibility, all his pride and manliness

When his family tried to rescue him by cutting off his supply, he went through hell. There was no sleep, there was no peace, there was nothing he wouldn't do for another

Diseased

Reg Clarkson, supervisor of the foundation office, 1080 Meares, said medical associations now are agreed that the alcoholic, the man who cannot control his craving for the drugging effect of alcohol is a diseased person and fully acceptable for general hospital care.

"But doctors have told us the alcoholic is not acceptable in a general hospital ward here unless it's an emergency."

He said doctors often tend to become exasperated with such patients, just as they would with a diabetic who won't stick to his diet. He said hospitals may accept him once or twice, but then hospitals become exasperated

Another Name

James Audain of the foundation's advisory committee is more outspoken: He recalled stating in 1962 that of 200 Greater Victoria physicians, only about six are "properly interested."

"I haven't altered this opinion much since then. Some keep a closed mind," he added today.

Mr. Audain says B.C. Hospital Insurance doesn't cover a man if he is in hospital for alcoholism. "He has to come in under a different flag."

Malnutrition, delerium tremers, pneumonia- that's now most alcoholics get into hospital, through dangerous complications from the disease itself.

The disease is incurable. but it can be arrested. Like diabetes, it needs proper diet —alcohol free diet. But first the acute stage of the disease has to be treated.

When the disease is raging in a man and after Christmas it will be raging in the systems of many of the 3.000 alcoholics in Greater Victoria, it can only be abated by medical atten-

Must Be Relieved

Until the acute phase is relieved, nothing can be done to restore the victim to a useful life in the community. But how do you cure a sick man if medical attention and hospital care is denied him?

Mr. Clarkson says he can't counsel an alcoholic when the patient has the shakes.

"I've got to get him into hospital. He's often told he's a bum and he's the only one who can improve himself. But is the message shouldn't get. If he is treated like a sick person, then it's hard for him to deny to him-self that he is sick, and that

Mr. Clarkson says alcoholism ranks with heart disease, cancer and mental illness in incidence but as long as the public and the medical fraternity and the hospitals continue to attach a stigma to the disease, alcoholics won't come forward for help.

More Would Come

"It only requires two, four days or a week in hospital. Right now, we wouldn't need need many beds. But as the stigma is removed, many more cases would come forward."

The drying out in hospital won't arrest the disease but the psychological treatment can't begin until that stage is past. The hospital cures the moment and convinces the alcoholic that he is sick in the eyes of society, not

"If we could get them in hospital it would create such an example." says Mr. Clarkson. "Now only five or six per cent of the alcoholics of the district come to us.

"If we had acceptance by the general hospitals, if we could work as a clinic there with five or six beds for start, other alcoholics would come forward."

In the year that the foundation has had a centre here it is estimated that Mr Clarkson and his staff have managed 150 interviews a month with alcoholics or their spouses.

Mr. Clarkson is attempting now to form an alcoholism council of six or eight persons representing interested. Greater Victoria organiza-tions, to undertake educa-tion and devise ways to bring more alcoholics into treatment.

Don't Press

In the meantime, one seasonal suggestion to all who will entertain over the holiday: Offer non-alcoholic bev-erages as well, and if a guest chooses not to drink liquor or beer or wine, don't press. And don't offer alcohol disguised as a non-alcoholic drink, It could be a disaster to someone else's Christmas.

that a blind woman has regained her vision after 17 years, apparently from bumping her head on a cupboard door. The woman, declining to be quoted by name, told a Dallas Times Herald reporter:

"I feel that it is a gift from God and I do not want to publicize it. It is a gift which might be taken away." Associates gave this account: The woman, in her 60s, stooped to pick something off the floor while doing housework, rose and banged her head sharply against the open cupboard door.

She cried out. A daughter next door heard the cry via their intercom) system and ran to investigate, still clutching a can of cleanser in one hand.

"What a pretty can," the mother remarked, and both suddenly realized she could see again.

Horror Games Sales Enjoy Season Boom

CHICAGO (AP) - Monster sales are booming this Christmas, provoking a controversy in the toy business.

Manufacturers expect horror toy sales will reach $20,000,000 this year.

Among the more popular toys are a chamber of horror kit and a guillotine with a battery-operated knife. Some industry sources pre dict horror toys may outsell the always popular guns, tanks, space rockets and gren ades. But manufacturers can't agree whether the horror toys are good or bad.

MISS MIDNIGHT'S NOTEBOOK: New York's musician —the ones who can really play, and do it for a living—aren't happy about the results of last week's elections at 802 head-quarters. They blame it on the newly instituted mail balloting, insisting that if the elections had been held at union head-quarters, as in the past, the representatives of butchers and bakers who hold 802 cards would have been defeated. Of course they're dreamers, or they would realize that union leaders are interested in raking in the dues, not in the quality of performances . . . British rock 'n' roll promoters are in a tizzy. Record sales are still going strong, but the concert business has taken a big slump, and they can't figure out the apparent contradiction.

Former president Eisenhower was all set to demand national GOP chairman Dean Burch's scalp at the meeting with Barry Goldwater and Richard Nixon at the Waldorf, but former secretary of the treasury George Humphrey, in a long telephone conversation, persuaded Ike to wait until after Jan. 22 when the members of the National Republican Committee convene in Chicago. Eisenhower isn't at all thrilled by Goldwater, but he has become friendly again with Nixon, and wants to see the former vice-president take a more active role

A group of 100 U.S. gamolers from the New York area had an unpleasant experience when they found themselves stranded on an island in South America to which they had repaired on a gamblers' junket. The U.S. consul had to fly in from Bogota to have the plane and its occupants released when the casino in which they had been frolicking went bankrupt and couldn't pay the junketeers' bills. (Aren't you glad you're paying income tax for that sort of thing, when you can't legally have a poker game in your own house?)

One of Vito Genovese's top lieutenants has dropped out of sight with all possible speed and quiet. Interested intermediaries suggested that he would be doing the boss a nice little favor if he took a long ocean voyage during the investigation of loan sharks . . . Nancy Kwan's chums expect her to make news soon . . . A new horror film takes the prize skeleton for titles. It's called Yuch! . . . Richard Brooks is sure his new Peter O'Toole epic, Lord Jim, will be a hit with the ladies After a recent private screening at his home, he discovered "I Love You Peter" written in lipstick on one of the walls . . . Della Reese's manager, Lee Magid, has launched his own discery, LMI Records, even though Della is signed to RCA-Victor... One of the most popular of female television stars has fallen hard for a guest she had on her show not long ago. He's eligible, but disinterested, so he gave her the polite brush and she's doing the broken heart bit.

Rex Harrison, in London for the Dec. 21 premiere of My Fair Lady, will stay over to make his grand entrance at the opening of The Yellow Rolls Royce on Dec. 30 . . . Abbe Lane and Marty Erlichman (Barbra Streisand's manager) have severed their business relationship already, although he was one of the groomsmen at Abbe's wedding . . . Clift Robertson would like to buy the fabulous 65-foot yacht used in the flick Love Has Many Faces. Frightfully exepensive, however; the interior was done in the manner of an ancient oriental palace, and that seemed to run into a lot of money . . . The large laugh in the record business is a shaggy-haired rock 'n' roll act called "The Barbarians," who are more British than any of the rest. Actually, insiders know, they're New Englanders from the vicinity of Cape Cod, Their manager, veteran Buddy Friedlander, decided to make them over in the manner of the English chaps who are doing so well, and the scheme worked.

Diaham Carroll left New York on three minutes' notice to fly to California and replace the ailing Nat King Cole at the opening of the new Los Angeles Music Centre... Preview customers have laughed so hard at Buddy Hackett's curtain speeches after I Had a Ball that he's expected to retain the routine for the run of the show . . . Jee Levine's next an nouncement-of-the-week will concern a film about one of India's most beloved leaders . . . Jean-Pierre Cassel, the French actor who is expected to make an important impact here when Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines is released, has already worked his charm on Catherine Deneuve, Roger Vadim's grande passion. The long-distance calls when they have to be apart are formidable.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Thursday announced that Campbell River has been elevated to the status of a district municipality

The action follows a "Yes' vote last week by residents of the area on the question.

Only the Oyster River, On sam and North Campbell River polling areas were excluded line with voting patterns there. Campbell River may vote on the question a second time.

POSTPONEMENT

At the same time, Mr. Campbell announced a one-year postponement has been declared in elevating Castlegar and Creston to town status.

They had been scheduled to become towns Jan. 1 along with Ladysmith, Hope and Merritt because they had reached the 2,500 population mark.

However a year's delay has been granted because both Cass-tlegar and Creston are in the midst of studies to determine if they should become district municipalities instead.

Mr. Campbell said a town is 'miniature city of concentrated population whereas a district municipality is a more flexible civic unit which blends both urban and rural areas.

Yet draino at its best is a creature scarcely less worthy than its cousin, potato cham-pagne; and if you've never sampled young-nettle wine from the vats of a skilled basement vintner, something is lacking in your experience.

If, at the corner of Yates and Douglas, a pollster asked three consecutive hurrying strangers how their latest batch of saki was coming along, the chances are that at least one would pause to discuss the merits of brown sugar against white, and the effects of temperature change on his or her product.

The plain fact is that saki, whether in bowls or glasses, served hot in the Japanese fashion or cold as most west-erners prefer it, lubricates more Victoria throats than any potable that wears a rev-

This I can't prove; but saki is probably Canada's national fermented drink.

Even so, it is but one of a fill the rest of this column. Some evening soon, me and my sweety hope to call on a brewmeister whose zeal is matched by his skill. Here are some of the items he may offer us:

A white wine that could pass for any good Sauterne; a red Chianti-type fit to be bound in straw and served to music by Verdi; a sparkling, crackling rose; an apple wine of such flavor and clarity that it mer-its better housing than a couple of scoured vinegar

I won't dwell on his beer, ale and stout, and I don't want anyone to run off with the notion that we connoisseurs of basement brews and vintages sit and guzzle.

Give Gifts of Good Taste for Christmas

By Penny Saver

Due to the recent onslaught of that white stuff welittle of around Victoria, it's beginning to feel a lot like Christ-mas. Penny braved the elements the other day to see what she could find in the way of Christmas treats for gifts and goodies under the Christmas tree

To warm the hearts of the youngsters is a little guardhouse, with a soldier guarding a bunch of old-fashioned chocolate paties, topped with "hundreds and thousands"—little sugar candies, you can get a whole trainload of these too.

These are ideal gifts for the neighborhood children when they drop in. Price is 39 cents.

A particularly nice candy to grace the coffee table for a pre-Christmas party is a selection of marzipan in an assortment of sizes. These are decorated with little designs of red and green and add a pleasing accent to a plate of Christmas cake when trimming the edge. A one-pound box is 75 cents.

For those who don't like or can't eat chocolate, I discovered an apple candy. This is a form of hardened apple syrup which is lightly dusted in sugar and packed in tiny wooden apple boxes. Build a snowman from five red Christmas apples, and centre him amidst a nest of these candies. It's a highlight for the dinner table or for a table centrepiece. Price per box is 89 cents.

Finding something to send to out-of-town friends which will be appropriate and well received is often quite difficult. A box of candy is welcomed by the whole family and will carry the Christmas message with good taste.

Queen's Cause Anxiety

LONDON (CP) - The uncertain world of international polities, which until recently hardly touched the stately round of royal activities, will affect two of the Queen's major engage-ments in 1965.

One of them, the long-ex-pected state visit to West Germany in May, is likely to provoke as much discussion even controversy, for different reasons—as the Queen's terse trip to Quebec last October.

It will be the first state visit of a British sovereign to Ger-many since Edward VII visited his nephew Kaiser Wilhelm II

In the 50 years since the outbreak of the First World War. Anglo-German relations have veered from open hostility to a lingering suspicion that occa-sionally still erupts in sections of the British press and public ion. The 1965 tour will probably be seen as a momentous watershed; the final recogni-tion, 20 years to the month after the Nazi surrender, that the two countries have buried the past.

But there will be controversy. The key to it is Berlin.

Germans apparently hope and expect the Queen to visit West Berlin, their "front-line" halfcity set like an island in the hossea of Communist East Germany. There are thorns diplomatic hazards here and the British foreign office says no arrangements will be announced until just before the royal tour starts May 18, in case of any fresh crisis in the divided city. SOME CHANGE

OME CHANGE later today a request from the United Nations for a renewal of the UN peace-keeping force's the national chamber's execu-tive council, indicated some change in the organization's ap-praisal of the economy since its said the Paris NATO meeting annual meeting in Winnipeg last

At that time the chamber said flatly, "tax relief aimed at Governor Dies stimulating business expansion through the encouragement of capital formation is required at the present time."

But today's submission said indications of a further 1965 step - up in capital spending, while encouraging, "have also Esquivel Mendez of Mexico's Baja California died here Thursday night after suffering an appently heart atraised questions about the posibility of an unduly rapid rate of capital expansion, at least in some sectors of the economy." COUNCIL POINTS

The executive council also ised these points:

1. Some areas of market "tightness" plus recent labor negotiations and settlements "have given rise to an increasing concern about the possibil-ity of renewed pressures on costs and profit margins."

2. Demand for Canadian exports in overseas markets had clearly begun to moderate.

3. There has been widespread

Bonded Stock is in the best shape ever.

Our whisky doesn't come in those old bottles anymore. Those fine old bottles have launched their last sips. We've designed these new containers for Bonded Stock. Plus matching new labels. And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. This makes every drop just a little more mellow. One thing though. Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it. Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock, so does the rest of the country.

TADY, UNATTACHED, WISHES TO meet respectable gentleman not over 48. Victoria Press, Box 603. BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY Too many cooks spoil the broth and too many captains will sink any ship. There was nothing unusual about East's opening diamond bid, nor in South's two-club overcall NORTH 18 ♣8653 ♥762 bid. At this point, North decided to become cap-49354 tain for his side and jumped to five clubs. He WEST EAST (D) ↑ KQ1042 ↑ AJ97 ♥ QJ43 ♥ AK ♦ K5 ↓ J109862 ↑ 106 ↑ 3 didn't have the cards to justify that bid, but he wanted to stir things up ₾ 10 6 for his vulnerable oppon-SOUTH ents and he succeeded ♦ None ♥ 10 9 8 5 admirably. East decided to overbid a trifle and + A74 + AK9872 went to five spades.

South passed and the East and West vulnerable West got into the act. He decided to captain his East South West North 2 & 2 & 5 & Pass 7 & Dble. Pass team and to bid six spades. North passed. He had done his full stint when he leaped to five clubs. East passed. Why not?

This put it right up to South, who put on his captain's hat, went into a huddle, took a deep breath and bid West doubled and opened a spade. South ruffed and ed a heart, whereupon East took his ace and king and led the jack of diamonds. This resulted in South losing four tricks and 700 points. South could have saved a trick in the play, but no one had twisted his arm and forced him to bid seven clubs. Instead, he could have passed six spades and collected a 100-point profit or he might have doubled and made 200 points. After all, two aces are pretty good

, $500 CASH

The move by ABC-TV in signing a $12,235,000 television package with major league baseball early this week shows how determined the network is in trying to capture the top network spot against such competition as that offered by CBS-TV and NBC-

It was a long time coming but eredit has to go to the network for its planning to reach this stage of Little by little, over the years, ABC introduced series after series which tried to catch the attention of the viewer. The other networks did not worry too much though because on their side. However, this didn't deter ABC as it continued to plug away and introduce new shows season after season in the top spot quest.

Many of the series faded away after a season or so. Then in the 1963-64 season the network decided on a new approach to the viewing season. Instead of showing one new series at a time, like the two other networks, it decided to package its season into one week and bomb the public with a solid week of new

This move didn't help too much during the '63'64 season but it did create interest.

This season it tried it again with great success During the first six weeks it captured the coveted top ratings and sent NBC-TV and CBS-TV plunging.

The mass show attack was so successful NBC:TV plans to steal a page from the ABC-TV book and do the same next season

In the meantime, the ratings drew the advertisers and the network soon found itself with money, a commodity lacking in the years of CBS and NBC domination

Now, the baseball coup shows that ABC-TV is that much closer to arriving. The one big factor in this deal is that unlike the past weekend games on CBS TV and NBC TV, the ABC TV contests will be seen in major league markets. All teams are involved except the Philadelphia Phillies, who are expected to join the plan soon, and the New York Yankees, who still have another year on their CBS-TV contract.

In the coming season, the Yankees will be seen again a dozen or so weekends on CBS TV, but still not in major league markets; in the following season, they presumably would join the other teams. Meanwhile, NBC TV's weekend baseball games are apparently a thing of the past.

Then word came yesterday that ABC, already packaging the great Wide World of Sport program on weekends, is burrowing even deeper into the television sports picture by offering $25,000 to the winner of the golf match that would pit Ken Venturi and Tony Lema against Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus. The match would be televised by the net-

It shows what determination can do and means also ABC-TV will be the network to keep an eye on, in more ways than one.

More and more politicians and bservers are now beginning to believe that neither can win the longest fight in the parliamentary record book.

They are becoming convinced that the New Democratic Party, playing its traditional role of referee, might be the only political group standing firmly on its two feet when the bout is finally over.

Some are also suggesting that the Social Credit splinter group the west and the Creditistes in Quebec will draw increasing public interest as the major pro tagonists continue to wound each other and weaken

different directions.

The main split is, still between the Conservative Quebec cau-cus which voted for both closure and the new flag and the English-speaking Red Ensign supporters.

Now however there is also a division between English-speaking Conservatives who refuse to accept the new flag and those who believe they fought the good fight, but most now honor Can-

DICKINSON, N.D. (AP)—An Indian walked four miles barefoot through the snow during a blizzard and survived the ordeal with only "cold burns" on his hands and feet.

Deadly Crow, 20, abandoned his car when it ran into a ditch about 30 miles southwest of here during the blizzard which marked North Dekreta this week.

He set out to seek help, but was forced back to his car by the biting wind and below-zero cold. He removed his shoes to warm his feet, then couldn't get his shoes back on.

When no help came, he walked to a farm near Amidon,

Winter Works

Grants Program

VANCOUVER (CP)-Premier Bennett said Thursday he thinks the government should be praised, not condemned, for its winter works policy.

The premier said here in an interview the government is trying to help ablehodied men who are on welfare be able they can't get work.

The government has been criticized for a policy of paying 50 per cent of wages of winter works workers who have been

The policy was a change from last year's when the government paid 25 per cent of all winter works workers' wages and 50 per cent of the wages of those
